FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

STRATEGIC RESULTS TEACHES PRESENTATIONS TO EMERGING TECHNOLOGY CENTER

Company Will Offer Top Ten Things to Do, Not to Do During Presentations

Baltimore, MD – July 15, 2011 – On Friday, July 8th, Strategic Results, meeting and communication management company, will provide employees at the Emerging Technology Center (ETC) guidance on delivering compelling presentations. In their own presentation, they will demonstrate the top ten best practices in presenting as well as the top ten things to avoid.

Through years of conference and meeting planning, Strategic Results has witnessed tens of thousands of presentations both good and bad. They have taken away a deep knowledge in delivering presentations that can only be acquired through such extensive experience, and they hope this knowledge will come in handy for their colleagues at the ETC.

The ETC, a Baltimore-based, non-profit business incubator, was a finalist this year for National Business Incubation Association's "Incubator of the Year" and "Outstanding Incubator Graduate" awards. As a tenant of the ETC, Strategic Results is glad for the opportunity to share its expertise with neighboring companies who could benefit from it.

Strategic Results recognizes the vital role presentations play in business today. Through Friday's presentation among other efforts, they want to help people who might not be communicating as effectively as they could.
