THREE FROM STRATEGIC RESULTS WIN PRESTIGIOUS NIH OD AWARD

BETHESDA, MD – OCT. 22, 2015 – Three employees working for Strategic Results have won the prestigious National Institutes of Health Director’s Award for superior performance or special efforts beyond regular job requirements.

Nana K. Afari, Isabel Manuela Estrada, PhD, and Tara M. Turner were part of a 10-person team recognized for “outstanding scientific and administrative leadership” in their efforts to develop and execute a three-day program to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of NIH’s Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research.

“They put on an informative, well-run program worthy of the office it honored, which was no surprise given their talent, dedication to their work and willingness to go above and beyond,” said Anne Dunne, CEO of Strategic Results. “Their work makes our company proud and consistently meets the high expectations of our clients.”

Recognizing the role of social and behavioral factors in prevention and treatment of disease, OBSSR Integrates the social and behavioral sciences across NIH’s institutes. The anniversary program included lectures featuring eminent scholars in the field, presentations aimed at fostering the careers of future scientists and a research symposium showcasing some of the most influential research in the field during the past 20 years.

Estrada, OBSSR communication manager, said she aimed to make her communications work for the event on par with the caliber of science that would be displayed. The team spent a year planning the event, she said. Afari is web manager for OBSSR and Turner was senior meeting planner.

“Of course, receiving the NIH OD Award was an honor and my heart skipped a beat or two when I heard about it,” said Estrada. “What really made it special was seeing our teamwork recognized as trendsetting for its excellence.”
